

UTAH HISTORICAL QUARTERLY

Contents

FALL 1983 VOLUME 51/NUMBER 4

IN THIS ISSUE 307

"MOUNTAIN COMMON LAW": THE EXTRALEGAL PUNISHMENT

OF SEDUCERS IN EARLY UTAH KENNETH L. CANNON II 308

RECLAMATION OF YOUNG CITIZENS: REFORM OF UTAH'S JUVENILE

LEGAL SYSTEM, 1888-1910 MARTHA SONNTAG BRADLEY 328

THE BASIS OF MINING PROPERTY RIGHTS IN NINETEENTH-CENTURY

UTAH: THE CASE OF THE RUSH VALLEY DISTRICT KEITH A. KELLY 346

"TO GET UTAH] IN [UNION]": DIARY OF A FAILED MISSION

..... EDITED BY WILLIAM C. SEIFRIT 358

BOOK REVIEWS 382

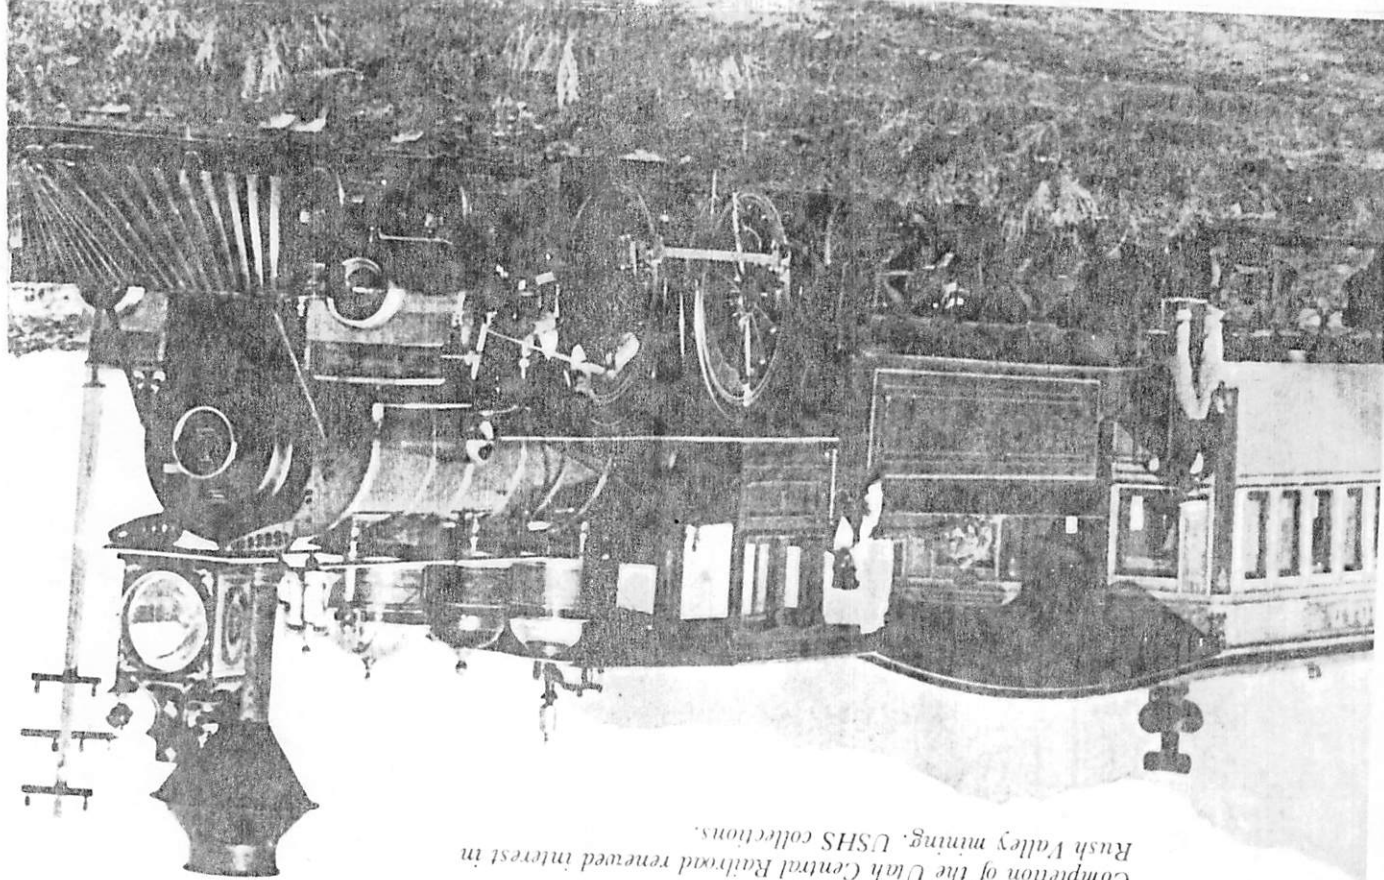

BOOK NOTICES 391

INDEX 393

THE COVER: A downtown landmark for nine decades, the Salt Lake City and County Building represents the best example of Romanesque Revival architecture in Utah. Designed by Monheim, Bird, and Proudfoot, it has housed local government officials since 1894, and until the completion of the Capitol it also served the needs of state government. It is listed in the National Register of Historic Places. City engineer's photograph, July 18, 1905, in USHS collections.

© Copyright 1983
Utah State Historical Society

Heber creper

Completion of the Utah Central Railroad renewed interest in Rush Valley mining. USHS collections.

¹⁸Murphy, Mineral Resources of the Territory, p. 5.
¹⁹U.S. Bureau of Census, Statistics and Technology of the Precious Metals (Washington, D.C.: U.S. Government Printing Office, 1885), p. 447.

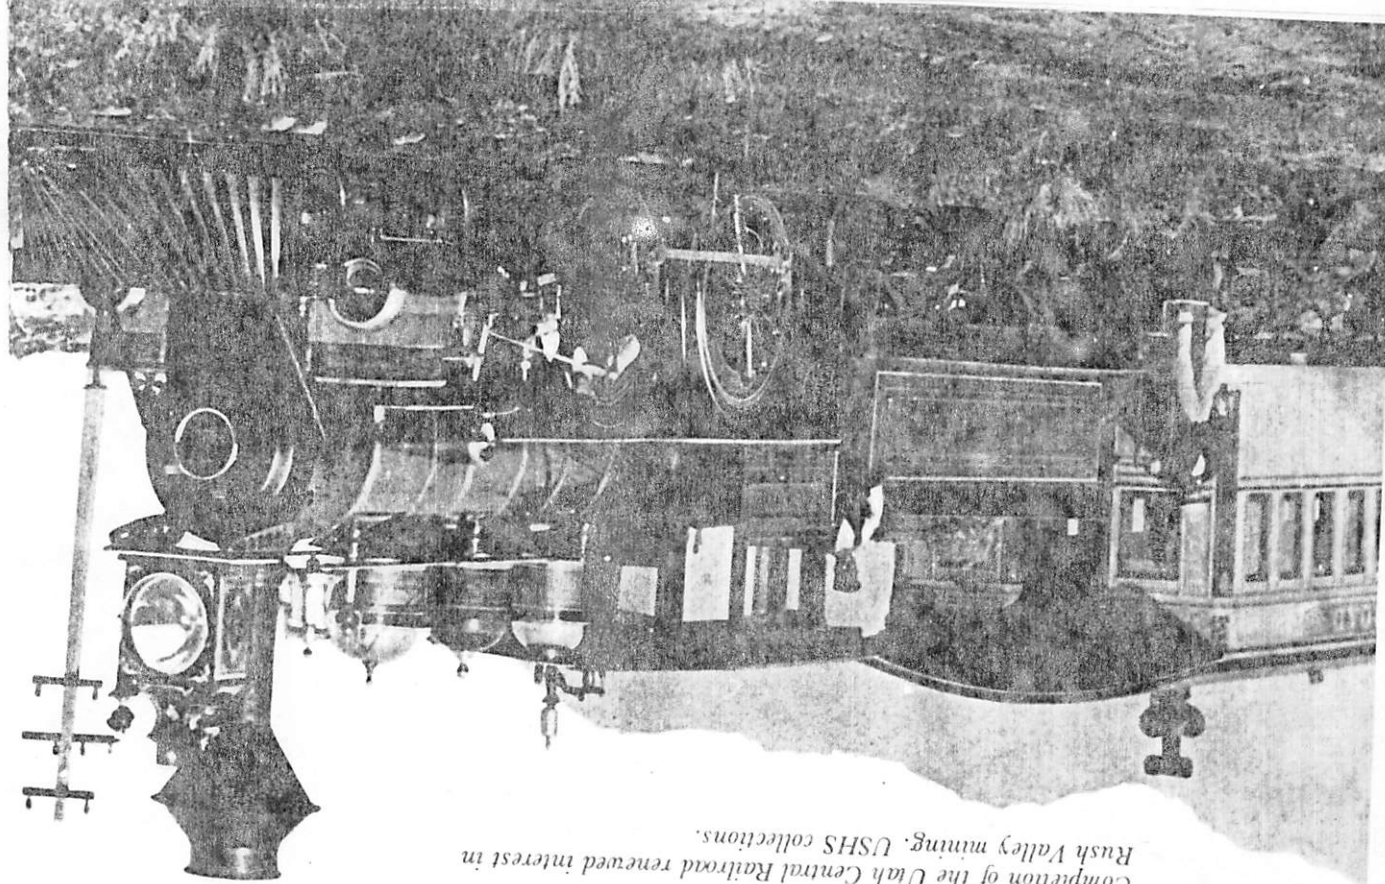

Although this report may be slightly inaccurate (could a small group of miners "jump everything" when there were over 500 jumped everything.¹⁹ miners came from White Pine Nevada, reorganized the district, and Valley district, but most of the titles had lapsed. At that time a party of Rush

In May, 1870, there were 850 locations on the books of the Rush overturned on May 12, 1870: indicating that the California Volunteers' restrictive bylaws were other writers was an 1880 census report of the Rush Valley district were opened for development. Apparently missed by Whitney and Even the locations that were not reclaimed by Connor's men

Many of the original locators of the West Mountain and Rush Valley Districts returned in the years 1869 and 1870, and renewed operations on their old locations. They entered into combination with capitalists for the development and practical working of their interest, and soon erected suitable reduction works.¹⁸

Volunteers had returned to work their claims: account of the mines, indicated in 1872 that several of the California

Completion of the Utah Central Railroad renewed interest in Rush Valley mining. USHS collections.

¹⁸Murphy, Mineral Resources of the Territory, p. 5.
¹⁹U.S. Bureau of Census, Statistics and Technology of the Precious Metals (Washington, D.C.: U.S. Government Printing Office, 1885), p. 447.

Although this report may be slightly inaccurate (could a small group of miners "jump everything" when there were over 500

miners came from White Pine Nevada, reorganized the district, and jumped everything.¹⁹

In May, 1870, there were 850 locations on the books of the Rush Valley district, but most of the titles had lapsed. At that time a party of overturned on May 12, 1870:

 indicating that the California Volunteers' restrictive bylaws were overturned on May 12, 1870:
 other writers was an 1880 census report of the Rush Valley district were opened for development. Apparently missed by Whitney and Even the locations that were not reclaimed by Connor's men were opened for development. Apparently missed by Whitney and other writers was an 1880 census report of the Rush Valley district indicating that the California Volunteers' restrictive bylaws were overturned on May 12, 1870:

 and soon erected suitable reduction works.¹⁸

Many of the original locators of the West Mountain and Rush Valley Districts returned in the years 1869 and 1870, and renewed operations on their old locations. They entered into combination with capitalists for the development and practical working of their interest,

Volunteers had returned to work their claims:
 account of the mines, indicated in 1872 that several of the California Volunteers had returned to work their claims:

Utah Historical Quarterly